

THE FREE PRESS JOURNAL

Is it the weight of money which keeps Sanju going?

Sources say Sanjay Dutt has charged a whopping 2 crore to feature in a soft drink ad was indeed heavy. "I have lost four kilos after wearing this dress for half an hour. It did not allow me to move. Although it made me feel very hot, I liked the look and the attitude," says Dutt. But about the money part, Sanjay just smiled and refused to comment.

The ad also features Ranbir Kapoor, who is also the brand ambassador of this soft drink giant, and Sanjay Dutt is all praise for the young actor. "It was a joyride to make Ranbir play the game. The way he handles the challenge put forth by the game master to achieve the Pepsi bottle was worth a watch. He is like a younger brother to me. It makes me feel proud to see him grown up to be a brilliant actor."

Further praising the youth of today, he comments, "I find the youth of today more active, intelligent and progressive. They seem to be determined and are sure to achieve success for which they work hard like how we did when we were young." Sanjay, who was once a victim of drugs, also had an important message to the youth, "Keep away from drugs."

BY LIPIKA VARMA

IF sources are to be believed, Sanjay Dutt, who dons the avatar of a game master in a soft drink commercial, has charged nothing less than 2 crore for featuring in it.

"The heavyweight attire which almost makes Sanju look atrocious had to be managed by him for almost 30 minutes. Now what could keep him going obviously is not the weight of the dress but the weight of the money," says a source.

When asked, Sanjay agrees that the costume

